

Who is David Wallace-Wells?

What does he say about his past life?

Until recently, how did Wallace –Wells feel about nature, the environment and environmental issues?

How did W-W become interested and even highly concerned about environmental change?

What are his credentials?

What does W-W mean when he refers to nature as a 'war machine'?

What do people, particularly politicians, generally talk about when referring to the future?

How does W-W link this to the major environmental issues of the future?

What does W-W say that he prefers to refer to and why?

Take note of the benchmarks W-W mentions. Why are they alarming?

What, for W-W, is the 2004 benchmark?

What link is there between the arrival of the Internet and global warming?

What is the difference, according to W-W, between the world prior to 30 years ago and today?

What about the next 30 years? What does W-Wells say about that?

Why does W-W mention theology and mythology? What is our position?

How can a real catastrophe be diverted?

W-W mentions a number of powerful people. What is the dilemma?

How does W-W see the solutions?

What does W-W fear most and why?

What does W-W say about people's involvement in global warming?